DOING NAPLES NOW

HAD TO BE VACCINATED

Because of Smallpox on Ship—Miss Corwin Tells Interesting Story of Her Travels in the Old World.

The following interesting letter from Miss Mae Corwin, who is now touring the old world, will be continued in tomorrow's issue. This will be followed in a few days by a letter on her visit to Rome.

Sorrento, July 22, 1912.—I suppose you have my cards from Naples and Pompeii, so you know I have taken this side trip. All the party came. It has been the greatest four days I ever spent.

To begin where I last left you. We arrived and pulled out of Gibraltar on schedule time with very little excitement. When at last the "Moltke" had appeared and we gathered on the pier to await the lighter we all regretted leaving Spain, for it proved a wonderful country to us and we had little hope of seeing a better. When the lighter arrived only four persons came off, instead of the whole ship load usually allowed to visit the place for a couple of hours. The Cook agent then informed us quietly that there was smallpox aboard and we must be vaccinated should we go aboard her. Cheerful, was it not? Well, we took a vote and decided to risk it (one case in first cabin) rather than wait two weeks for another vessel. So taking our courage in hand we went forward. We decided since all the water of Spain, plus her wines, had not bothered us, smallpox had a poor show.

We found a smaller and much nicer crowd this time, quite a lot of young men from New York and the east out of school. One crowd of four had traveled here before and could tell us very helpful things. They were now coming to make a walking tour of the Tyrolian Alps, then tours of Germany and Austro-Hungary. Lots of school teachers and several families, and everybody so well acquainted and mixed up by that time. The weather was perfect and the sea calm, so we enjoyed every minute of the ride.

Arrived about noon, July 18. Naples surely is a great city with a wonderful bay and fine mountains behind. We had a splendid view of rocky Sardinia and several smaller islands as we came in. Small boys, a beautiful bronze color, swam all around the steamer and dived for pennies. Beggars came out to meet us in row boats and held umbrellas up for our contributions. When drawn up at the dock they gathered below and displayed their stock in trade (various deformities), sang and otherwise tried to inveigle the reluctant pennies from our pockets. We also now saw a new race of soldiers. The quaintest were arrayed in a regulation dark suit, gun and belt, but the hat was a wonder. It was black patent leather, a round top sailor like a woman's and decorated with a breast and tail feathers of a bird—that black, greenish kind; we have some just like it at home—hanging gracefully over one side. They keep it at a rakish angle and it is held there by the chin strap. They are federal and go in pairs and surely show that the Italians enjoy a caricature.

Had no trouble at the customs house, where the Cook man checked us through sight unseen and we were again checked outside. They don't suspect a bunch of artists of carrying much plunder. We then began the carriage riding so popular on the continent. They take three persons in a cute one-horse victoria, with umbrella tied drunkenly on above, several miles for less than ten cents each. "When in doubt, call a cab," is now our byphrase.

Forgot to say we were all vaccinated in spite of protests. The passengers exhibited badly cut up arms, made by the Italian doctor, when they had been herded into it and we threatened a strike. The head steward had told abroad how our bunch had everything our way on the boat before and what a good time we had (we didn't know how he got these

To continue Naples: It is dirtier than Spain, has many interesting, narrow streets, where miles of steps go skyward and washings hang continuously. One flower street is beautiful with stalls on every step. The shops are all small and the coral and cameo ones simply dazzle the American eye. At night we heard the finest band concerts down in the park on the bay and ate Neapolitan ice cream with great relish.

We went through the National museum, much like all museums, except for the amount of Pompeian remains, which filled several rooms, and some of the old original marbles from Greece.

"Original" is our latest word now. Everything of value here is the original something, so we now have the word as a regular part of our slang vocabulary.

CRISS CASE DISMISSED

Case Against A. O. Mason Will Be Tried Again Next Monday—Mayor and Police Judge Pretty Busy.

Wednesday afternoon and evening was a busy time in the city police court, as two cases, A. O. Mason and Roland Criss, charged with violating the automobile ordinance, were tried. A jury was summoned for both cases, and in both cases there was a hung jury.

The Mason case came up first, and the charge was exceeding the speed limit. The city's side of the case was represented by City Attorney W. E. Wiles, and Mr. Mason was represented by W. G. Sawyers and A. F. Harvey. A number of witnesses were examined and the case was not given to the jury until 5 o'clock, but they were unable to agree, the vote standing four for conviction and two for acquittal. The case against Mason will be re-tried next Monday.

The case against Roland Criss, charged with running a car and hauling passengers without a license, was the next case called, but the jury was unable to agree in this case, so the city dismissed the cases against Criss and Veyn Hanna, who was also charged with the same offense.

THE SCHOOL MONEYS

HAVE BEEN APPORTIONED BY THE STATE SUPERINTENDENT.

MORE THAN LAST YEAR

There are 18,555 Public School Teachers in Missouri—Most of Them Receive Less Than $1,000.

W. P. Evans, State superintendent of public schools, Tuesday made public the official apportionment to the public schools of Missouri, by counties, of state funds.

The statement shows how much is allotted to each division and St. Louis, the attendance, total days attendance, total teachers, number of teachers with a salary more than $1,000 a year and number of part time teachers.

As was published a week ago the total amount allotted is $1,804,970.14, which is $42,833 more than last year. The new law governing the distribution of school money goes into effect with this apportionment, counties and St. Louis only receiving funds according to the number of children actually enrolled in and attending public schools daily and according to the number of teachers employed.

No allotment is made for children who attend parochial or other private schools and institutions or for children of school age, who do not attend, as formerly was the case.

Under this arrangement St. Louis receives $325,834.14, which is less by $29,593 than a year ago. Jackson county, including Kansas City, also shows a decrease, receiving $147,896.22, which is $4,447 less.

The new law favors counties which have no large cities or towns, and, therefore, fewer parochial and private schools. School districts can increase their allotment by encouraging attendance and increasing the length of their term. Buchanan county, in which is St. Joseph, to the contrary of this rule shows an increase over last year of $2,898.42, the amount for 1912 being $45,096.28.

This county showed a tremendous loss last year over 1910 because of padded census and school figures. Counties like Gasconade, Franklin and Cole, in which is Jefferson City; Ste. Genevieve, Warren, St. Charles, Cape Girardeau, Marion, New Madrid, Cooper and Greene, in which is Springfield; Osage, Perry, St. Louis and Stoddard, which contain parochial and similar schools, show a loss in amount of funds set aside for them over last year.

Bollinger, Butler, Camden, Carter, Christian, Dent, Douglas, Dunklin, Iron, Laclede, Lawrence, Mississippi, Newton, Oregon, Ozark, Pemiscot, Perry, Reynolds, Scott, Shannon, Stone, Washington and Webster, which have short school terms, also show a decrease, due to the children being kept at home at certain times to assist in work.

There are, according to Evans' report, 1,907 teachers in the public schools of the state who receive more than $1,000 a year, of which number 1,427 are in St. Louis, 250 in and around Kansas City and forty-one in Buchanan county, including St. Joseph. Then there are 14,408 public school teachers in Missouri with more than fifteen pupils each, who receive less than $1,000, the majority receiving not more than half of that sum.

In all there are 18,555 teachers connected with the public schools of Missouri. The apportionment for attendance is made on the basis of a little over a cent a day for each pupil.

The total amount set aside for school purposes for 1912 was $1,832,746. After allowance and deductions have been made because of errors, etc., the amount left to be apportioned is $1,804,970.14.

Home Health Club

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER,
LaPorte, Ind.

Causes of Infections—Now that the summer vacation season is here, it becomes necessary to guard against public causes of infection. The things one should especially guard against are flies, public drinking cups, public towels, bad drinking water and infected foods.

Public drinking cups should be of all things avoided. It is dangerous enough to have to drink the bad water that is often contained in the tanks on railway cars, steamboats, etc., but the public cup there is awful to think about. Persons with the vilest diseases use them as well as those with other contagious diseases, whose name is legion. Just think of the microbes they may leave.

Carry your own drinking cup wherever you go, especially when traveling, for you never know beforehand when thirst may impel you to drink water in some public place.

Children going to school should everyone have a drinking cup of his or her own. There are children at school from the very hot beds of disease, filth and other contagious infections, and it is miraculous that more disease is not conveyed to the other children by this means. There is more than enough, however, and far more than the average parent knows of; far more than is generally supposed.

Another similar danger is the public towel. The same rule that applies to the public drinking cup also applies to this.

When you come to think of it, is it not awful to use a towel that someone with sore eyes, catarrh, tuberculosis, scrofula, syphilis, or other terrible and infectious disease has been using? And how are you to know who wiped his eyes, face, nose, mouth on the same towel? It is repulsive, very, when you come to think of it. And it is just such hammering as this that finally succeeds in making you think of it.

The dog is often mentioned as man's most faithful friend. But this is no reason why these pets should be allowed to carry contagion to you and your household. Dogs and cats go everywhere about the premises, or streets where filth is, and of the two classes of animals the dog is the worst in matter of filth. He will gnaw a bone that is swarming with deadly germs. Not deadly to him, because his stomach and general make-up is built on another plan from that of the human. But he mixes in with all kinds of nastiness, fights or fondles other dogs and carries germs in his mouth, in his hair, and then comes and licks your hand or the hands and faces of the children, thus spreading typhoid, tuberculosis, diphtheria, smallpox, or anything that he has been in contact with.

Do not let people kiss and hug your children. Many a case of consumption has been conveyed by a kiss. There are always ways to prevent it without being rude. If you have not that much tact, try to achieve it.

The Home Health club dwells upon these matters because it cannot conscientiously subscribe to any half-way measures so far as the conservation of health hygiene, sanitation, and all such interests are concerned.

Club Notes.

Dear Doctor: I am past 70 years old. Have had fairly good health most of my life, but my kidneys are not in good condition this warm weather. Urine is scant, high-colored and salty. Urination is not painful but scant. Am constipated at times. Eat well, sleep well, and do chores.

MRS. E. B.

There are probably two causes of your trouble. First, it is quite likely that you are eating food that is too heavy and too highly concentrated for you. A person of your age must necessarily be careful of what he eats and especially so during the hot summer season. You should not eat meat oftener than once daily, nor very little starch food, such as mashed or fried potatoes and white bread. Whole wheat bread and Graham bread, fresh fruits and vegetables, and fresh buttermilk should, in the main be your diet during the summer.

Second, you are probably not drinking enough water. At your age you should drink freely of water; several glasses daily, the first thing in the morning, between meals, and the last thing at night. And you should see to it that it is not hard or lime water. Distilled or pure filtered rain water should be the best.

Old age is simply ossification, which is caused by an excess of calcareous matter in the veins. Good pure filtered rain water is the greatest solvent known. By its continuous use the old age matter in the veins is dissolved to some extent. It also benefits the kidneys and the bladder.

People seldom live to a great age who are forced to use hard water.

Those living in limestone districts

should use the filtered rain water.

Dear Doctor: Have a pain in small of back when I lift or bend. Have to get up at night five or six times to urinate. I am 51 years old, but active. Have been troubled this way for about five or six years, off and on.

MRS. M. A.

Your condition seems to be one which would ordinarily be called rheumatic lumbago. You also have some inflammation of the kidneys. In Vol. 2 of the Home Health Club books, under the heading "Lumbago," is given a good treatment for such cases. Very hot fomentations from the middle of the spine down will give you almost immediate relief. For the kidney trouble you need to correct your diet so as to exclude pork and rich, heavy foods, such as too much starchy and sweet foods and pastry. The buttermilk diet, which I have so often mentioned in my lectures, would be a very good diet in your case. Rich foods overwork the kidneys and simple abstemious diet would give them a chance to rest and recuperate. A skillful osteopath would probably find some trouble in the lower part of the spine.

Orator Who Nearly Lost His Pants.

In the September American Magazine appears the following about a delegate at the Baltimore convention who made a speech:

"The crowd listened approvingly to a frenzied speech from a Southwestern statesman who introduced an entirely new gesture. With his right hand outstretched he made wild catches at his shoulder with his left hand thumb. It turned out that this was no mere affectation to emphasize his rhetoric, but that his 'galluses' were slipping. He remarked to a fellow delegate as he came down from the platform: 'I darn near lost my pants.'"

PENROSE TELLS OF ARCHBOLD CHECK

Makes Long Speech in Senate Regarding Campaign Money.

CLAIMED BLISS ASKED FOR MORE

Floor Was Crowded With Those Eager to Hear Announced Explanation—Promised Further Disclosures Later.

Washington, Aug. 22.—In a careful, deliberate speech in the senate Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania replied to the charges made regarding a certificate of deposit for $25,000 sent to him by John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company, in 1904.

Penrose admitted receiving that sum from Archbold, but said it was part of a contribution of $125,000 made by Archbold to the Republican national campaign fund, $100,000 of which amount, he said, went to the Republican national committee and $25,000 to himself for use in Pennsylvania.

Says Roosevelt Knew.

Penrose had read by the clerk a newspaper interview with Colonel Roosevelt in which the latter was quoted as saying that Penrose had nothing to do with the presidential campaign of 1904. The senator said he was a member of the national committee, chairman of Pennsylvania state committee and conducted the campaign in Pennsylvania.

"President Roosevelt had been advised of the contribution," Senator Penrose declared. He said that later Cornelius N. Bliss, then treasurer of the national committee, asked for another contribution of $150,000 from Archbold and his associates in the Standard Oil company.

William Flinn, Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania, was scored by Penrose. The senator charged that in 1904 Flinn offered him and Israel W. Durham $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 if they would favor his candidacy to the senate to succeed Senator Quay. Senator Penrose read what purported to be copies of telegrams to show that Flinn asked John D. Archbold to assist him in getting the election.

Culberson Bill Called Up.

The galleries of the senate were filled and were bright with feminine finery in response to the announcement that Senator Penrose was to speak. The floor was crowded with senators and members of the house. He read his speech from printed proofs and talked slowly and impressively.

At the conclusion of his speech the senator promised further disclosures. Senator Culberson of Texas called up his bill forbidding campaign contributions by corporations and limiting the amount to be contributed by individuals to $5,000.

A filibuster developed against the measure and after 38 senators had forced a half dozen rollcalls on it the senate was forced to adjourn.

KANSANS ARE AGAIN ENJOINED

SECOND SUIT AFFECTS SECRETARY OF STATE ONLY.

Notified by Wire to Make no Move Regarding Roosevelt Electors Till Cases Are Heard.

Topeka, Aug. 22.—The restraining order of Federal Judge Smith McPherson of the United States court at Red Oak, Ia., to stop the names of the Roosevelt electors going on the ballot in Kansas is a topic of excited discussion throughout the state.

A second injunction suit to the same end was filed before Judge McPherson.

A temporary restraining order was granted just before 11 o'clock and Charles Sessions, secretary of state, was notified by telegraph not to make any move until the injunction had been heard.

The first order served came too late to do any good. D. R. Hite, chief of the Taft attorneys, went to Red Oak early in the morning and asked for an entirely new injunction directed solely against Sessions as secretary of state. The same allegations of fraud, misrepresentation and disenfranchisement is set up in the new suit filed and the order of Judge McPherson simply prohibits the secretary of state from issuing any certificates of nomination to the Kansas county clerks.

The first suit was brought to stop the state canvassing board from issuing any certificates of nomination to the eight Roosevelt men. But the certificate already had been issued.

The new suit brought will be heard by Judge Sanborn the date set for the first injunction proceeding.

Lady in Goodwater Describes Her Distressing Experience and Tells How She Was Finally Relieved.

Goodwater, Mo.—"Ever since I was a little girl," says Mrs. Riley Laramore, "I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia. I suffered misery after eating, and had terrible heartburn."

I thought I had to suffer this way as long as I lived, but when I began to take Thedford's Black-Draught, in small doses, every night, the heartburn was all gone in a few days, and I could eat without distress.

I took two small packages in all, and although that was some time ago, the dyspepsia has not returned.

I speak a good word for Thedford's Black-Draught whenever I have the opportunity."

If eating causes distress, we urge you to try Thedford's Black-Draught. It cleanses the system, helps the stomach to digest its food, regulates the bowels, and stimulates the liver.

It acts gently and is without bad after-effects. Try it. Price 25c.

SECRET SERVICE CHIEF RESIGNS

W. J. Flynn to Assist in Probe of New York Police Scandal.

WAS HEAD OF DETECTIVE BUREAU

Announcement Causes a Sensation Among Officials—District Attorney Offers $5,000 Reward for Missing Gang Men.

Washington, Aug. 22.—William J. Flynn, chief of the New York division of the United States secret service, plans to resign his federal position temporarily, to assist the committee of New York aldermen in their sweeping investigation of police conditions in New York revealed by the scandal growing out of the Rosenthal murder.

Flynn's Action a Surprise.

New York, Aug. 22.—The news from Washington that William J. Flynn is to assist the graft investigation caused a sensation in police circles. Flynn, for six months, was head of the detective bureau, the position now held by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty.

His publicly stated reason for resigning was that his powers had been curtailed and his efforts to close up gambling resorts had been interfered with. He declared there were several high police officials who were crooks and that when he had given evidence of their dishonesty to his superiors nothing had been done about it.

District Attorney Whitman charged that "some members" of the police department knowingly permitted the escape of "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie," the missing gangsters indicted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

Says Police Know Murderers.

The district attorney announced the offer of a reward of $5,000 for the capture of the fugitives.

The prosecutor in a formal statement said:

"This reward is not offered to any member of the police department or anybody in their employ.

"In taking this position I am actuated by the belief that if proper police work had been done these men would now be in custody. The city of New York is paying millions of dollars annually to the police department whose duty it is to detect crime and apprehend criminals and I can not escape the conclusion that some members of the police department have known, if they do not now know, the whereabouts of these murderers."

Private citizens made it possible for the district attorney to offer the reward. Circulars describing the two men will be sent broadcast.

Detectives Let Him Go.

One of the district attorney's reasons for suspecting that the police have allowed the two to escape was indicated when it became known that Sam Schepps, in his testimony before the grand jury said that three detectives from New York police headquarters had recognized him while he was hiding in Fallsbury, N. Y., and had deliberately allowed him to escape. These detectives were three of five sent to the region to find him and arrest him on the charge of murder which the police had made against him.

CHICKENS BECAME DISSIPATED

Oklahoma City Man Wants Lights Out at Midnight so Fowls Will Behave Themselves.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 22.—John Sherwin has asked the city commissioners to have the street arc lights turned off at midnight for a most unusual reason.

Sherwin lives a hundred feet from a corner light and every night his chickens go out under the big electric light and feast on the hundreds of grasshoppers attracted there and cannot be induced to leave the feast.

"Sometimes the chickens remain up all night," said Sherwin, "and go back to roost about daylight. They are drowsy all day and the hens do not lay."

Sherwin says the rooster demoralized his flock by straying out late one evening and discovering the grasshoppers. He gallantly called the hens.

TOMATO LABELS MUST NOT LIE

Department of Agriculture Ruling Makes Reprinting of 24,000,000 Necessary.

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—Twenty-four million labels for canned tomatoes must be reprinted to satisfy a ruling of the federal agricultural department.

That department has ruled that only "Solid Pack" cans may bear the label "Tomatoes." One made of juice and pulp must be labeled "Puree made from tomato trimmings, with at least one pound of tomatoes."

In accordance with this ruling, C. H. Butler, general manager of California Fruit Cannery association, said orders had been sent out that substitute labels be used on approximately 1,000,000 cases already labeled

PRESIDENT YUAN SHI KAI

President Yuan of the Chinese Republic has aroused a storm by the summary execution of a number of southern generals, formerly of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's party, who were suspected of conspiracy. Yuan's own life may be in danger.

FIGHTING AGAIN AT WU CHANG

GRAVE UNEASINESS OVER FOREIGNERS AT HANKOW.

Present Trouble Believed Due to Killing of Republican Generals by Yuan Shi Kai.

Shanghai, Aug. 22.—That desperate fighting is in progress at Wu Chang is confirmed by a dispatch from Hankow. The nature of the outbreak is unknown, although it is taken for granted that it grows out of President Yuan Shi Kai's recent killing of two Republican generals. Wu Chang is Vice-President Li's headquarters.

Hankow and Hanyang constitute virtually one great city. They are separated from one another by the Yangtze river. Hankow has a large foreign settlement and grave uneasiness is felt for its safety.

Vice-President Li has supported President Yuan hitherto, but is understood to have been estranged from him by Yuan's attempt to become dictator.

One theory is that friends of the dead generals, accepting Yuan's lead, have attacked Li. Another is that Yuan's friends initiated the attack because he has become the president's enemy.

At all events, it is feared the outbreak marks a resumption of civil war.

Many republican Chinese favor making Li president of southern China and declaring war on the northern provinces, where Yuan is in control. Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first provisional president, undoubtedly would be chosen, but few believe he will escape alive from Peking, whither he has gone to investigate the killing of the two generals.

Yuan Shi-Kai has been playing both ends against the middle in China and so far he has met with success.

Through his influence the imperial family was provided with pensions and abdicated. Then Yuan was elected president.

SELF ASSESSMENT SUCCESSFUL

Passaic, N. J., Depended on Honor of Property Owners—Net Gain Was $5,300,000.

Passaic, N. J., Aug. 22.—The city commission, which went into office here a year ago, has won a handsome profit for the city by practically permitting large property owners to tax themselves.

Insisting that the values on the tax rolls in previous years had been too low, the commission this year asked the mill owners to furnish inventories of their own property. In most cases the owners gave estimates greatly in advance of the figures at which their property had been previously assessed. One company voluntarily raised its assessment from $600,000 to $1,500,000. The net gain obtained by this method over the assessment figures of 1911 was $5,300,000.

HARVESTER CASE ABOUT READY

Geo. W. Perkins and Other Officials Appear Before Special Examiner Next Month.

Washington, Aug. 22.—George W. Perkins, with other officials of the so-called harvester trust, will be called before a special examiner next month at Chicago, to give testimony in the proceedings which the government has instituted for dissolution of the alleged combine.

It is estimated that the task of taking this testimony will last three months.

Department officials have been working all summer to get their case in shape. All the phases of the many business activities of the harvester trust have been thoroughly investigated. Subpoenas will be issued to obtain the attendance of the first witnesses about September 15.

Killed by a Plow.

Enid, Ok., Aug. 22.—Mrs. Catherine Mortz was killed while plowing on a farm three miles northeast of here. She used a whip on one of the horses and caused it to jump, throwing Mrs. Mortz between two plowshares and breaking her back.

VOTED TO RETAIN COMMERCE COURT

For the Third Time House Passes Bill Over Veto of President.

FAILED TO PASS IN THE SENATE

Compromise Finally Reached Continuing Appropriation Till March 4—Leaders Believe Measure Will Now Be Signed.

Washington, Aug. 22.—For the third time the house passed the legislative, executive and judicial bill over the veto of President Taft by a vote of 154 to 53, but in the senate the effort to pass it failed, 34 to 27. As a result the house amended the measure to provide a continuing appropriation for the commerce court until March 4, 1913, passed it and it now lies with the senate appropriation committee with good prospects that it will pass the senate.

This is a chronological resume of the progress of the bill for the day. The solution of the deadlock between congress and the White house is believed to have been found and as a result adjournment now looms appreciably nearer.

Reached Senate Too Late.

There was a marked difference between the passage of the bill in the house over the president's veto and its passage in amended form. When it was found that the chief executive had been overruled by a 3 to 1 vote there was a tumult of applause. When it was put through after the failure of the senate to follow the house's lead there were fewer than 30 members in their seats, there was no debate and scarcely an audible vote. It reached the senate too late to be acted on.

When the senate refused to overrule the president, Senators Crane and Smoot carried the news to the White house.

No intimation was given at the White house as to whether the new compromise would be acceptable to the president, but senate and house leaders are confident the measure will be signed.

Will Taft Sign it?

Many of the Republicans contend that the appropriation for the commerce court should be extended until June 30, the end of the fiscal year, but they are not insistent and it was the general belief of the majority leaders in the house that the contention would not be pressed.

While the senate has taken no action on the legislative appropriation bill, a majority of the members of that body, anxious to hasten an adjournment, favor meeting the terms of the house in the belief the president will then sign the bill.

Progress on Army Bill.

A tentative agreement was reached over the army appropriation bill, but the matter was reopened by the conferees later. It is understood an agreement had been made affecting the eligibility of officers to the position of chief of staff, which members of the senate later objected to.

A final agreement on the army bill probably will be reached early in the morning.

HOPPERS GET OKLAHOMA TOWNS

People Driven Into Homes at Tulsa by Insects—Stop Interurban Traffic at Sapulpa.

Tulsa, Ok., Aug. 22.—Tulsa was captured by an army of grasshoppers. The hoppers arrived early at night and their approach was attended with a noise like a hailstorm. They drove people from the streets, forced an entrance into dwelling houses and made life miserable for the occupants. By morning the streets were paved with grasshoppers. Many people carried umbrellas to protect themselves from the pests. The grasshopper army came from the north and is moving southward through the state.

Sapulpa, Ok., Aug. 22.—Myriads of grasshoppers arrived from the north, crippling interurban and city electric line traffic. Hundreds of chickens are reported to have died eating the insects. Gardens, lawns, alfalfa and shade trees are being damaged.

MRS. TOM'S PART IN THE ELECTION

Governor Marshall's Wife Has
the Memory for Names.

ROMANCE OF THEIR LIVES

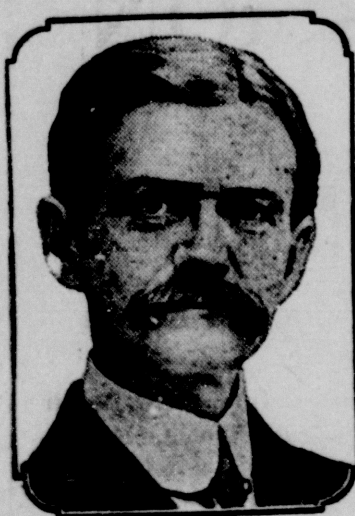

The Notification of the Indiana Executive for Democratic Vice-Presidency Honors a Record-Breaker.

By J. C. HAMMOND.
Of Democratic National Publicity Bureau.

Indianapolis.—Just about the time that thousands of friends of Governor Thomas Riley Marshall were anxiously waiting to shake his hand in congratulation on his acceptance as candidate of vice-president on the Democratic ticket, a smiling woman stepped before him, and if one could have heard what she whispered in his ear it would have been something like "Now, hurry in, Tom, and change your clothes."

And Tom Marshall forgot to shake hands with the enthusiastic friends until he had carried out the orders of Mrs. Tom.

Indiana has honored four of her sons as vice-presidential candidates on the Democratic ticket, but the crowds that greeted Governor Marshall in the big coliseum in the state fair grounds, Indianapolis, on Tuesday were the greatest in the history of the party.

The west wanted to show the east what could be done in notification honors, and while Mrs. Marshall was happy, of course, over the honors for her husband, she was also worried, for her husband comes mighty close to being father, husband, son and partner all in one. And when a woman has that combination on her hands to care for she has every right to be worried.

Governor Marshall will never gain any honors as a hammer thrower. He is not built that way.

While all the country was reading the vigorous words of Governor Marshall which told the voters what he expects Democracy to do in carrying out the pledges for the next four years it's worth while to know what part a woman is taking in the affairs of the campaign—how Tom Marshall happens to be in the position in which he stands today.

The good people of Columbia City, Ind., never thought Thomas Riley Marshall was a "merry man." For forty years he had lived with his parents, nursing both his father and mother, who were invalids, which was the reason Governor Marshall was not a merry man. He felt his first duty was to his parents.

Meeting Mrs. Marshall.
After the death of his parents Governor Marshall lived deeper into his law practice, and one day an urgent case took him to Angola, Ind. His duties called him to the county clerk's office, and there he met Miss Lois Kinney, daughter of the county clerk, who was assisting her father in the office.

From that day Governor Marshall had more business around the county clerk's office in Angola than any lawyer in half a dozen nearby counties.

Governor Marshall was forty-two years of age when he was married, Mrs. Marshall being nearly twenty years his junior.

The Marshalls had been married only a few weeks when the future vice-president was called to an adjoining county on a case that would consume some five or six weeks of his time.

"Now, I did not want to be starting off like that," Governor Marshall explained to a friend one day, "so I just told Mrs. Marshall that I thought she should go along. And she did."

Since then Governor Marshall has never made a trip without Mrs. Marshall going along. They have traveled all over the country together; they go to banquets and political meetings together until the friends of the Indiana executive refer to him and his wife as the "pards."

"Tom Marshall is not over strong," explained one of his friends. "While not a delicate man, his constitution is not of the most vigorous type."

"When he gets into a political battle he forgets his weakness. He gives all that is in him, and that will tell on any man. Mrs. Marshall soon discovered that the governor would become heated in making a speech and the first day his voice would be husky. She decided that he had better give up some of the handshaking and take care of his health first. So when you find him making a speech when he has finished he does not stay around to hear the applause of the audience. Rather, he hurries to his room and changes his clothing.

"Some people have said that Tom Marshall is not a handshaking politician. He is not. His wife thinks it is more important to guard his health than to carry out the old time policy, and she is correct, as she is in most all other things."

"Home Air" Prevails.

The Marshall home is typical of the mistress. It is a home of books, and still one does not feel "bookish." One of the Marshall friends said he always felt like eating when he entered the Marshall home in Columbia City or the executive mansion at Indianapolis.

Mrs. Marshall believes in a home first, and the "home air" prevails.

"If Governor Marshall ever occupied the White House people would not know that historic institution," declares an admirer. "Mrs. Marshall would have it a real home. People would feel comfortable even in the midst of the gold and glitter."

But it is not only as a wife and the mistress of a home that Mrs. Marshall shows her ability. She is a politician and a clever one. She also has a remarkable memory.

Governor Marshall has earned the reputation of being in a class of story tellers all by himself. He can remember stories, but he forgets names. A name is something to be cast aside with Governor Marshall, and this is one of the regrets of his life, if he has any regrets. The governor is not a worrying man. He is somewhat of a fatalist, but if he could he would like to remember names; but, not having that ability, he does not worry, for Mrs. Marshall is the name rememberer of the family.

She has a peculiar ability along this line. Not only does she remember the last name, but any combination of names comes as second nature to her, and she carries this ability on down to the children and cousins of any one seeking the governor.

While the governor is shaking hands and trying to remember whether his caller is Jones or Smith, Mrs. Marshall is busy supplying the information and sipping about all the relatives.

Ideal Partners.
Governor Marshall has no brothers or sisters, and his parents being dead leaves him somewhat barren of relatives.

Governor Marshall's friends are enthusiastic over his home life. When he has started on talking of his wife a new light in the Hoosier executive comes to the surface.

They come near being ideal married partners.

"I was talking to Tom one day," explained one of his most intimate friends. "We were leaning back, and Tom had been telling some of his good stories to illustrate various topics of our conversation. We were waiting for Mrs. Marshall to come back from a shopping tour, and I happened to remark that I liked Mrs. Marshall better every time I met her."

"Well, now that's the way she strikes me, Jim," he said. "We have been married some sixteen years, and as time goes that is a long or short period, just as you think. To me it is but a fleeting day. Then I think back over my married life and find I have grown to know Mrs. Marshall better every day. A man must not only love but he must also respect his partner in this life—respect her in all things. She must have wonderful qualities to make the love and respect grow deeper and better each day. That's been my history."

"The fact that Mrs. Marshall has been in sympathy in my work, my play, my life, is good. But I have been in sympathy with her. Ours is not a one sided life. We have been partners, and that's the way it should be in this world."

Mrs. Marshall has watched over his administration of the affairs of Indiana with a jealous care. There has been nothing of the spectacular in his administration. It has been a sane government. The laws that he has fought for and won show the spirit of the man. They are uplifting. They deal with the improvement of man, woman and child.

While Governor Marshall is described as a "tender hearted" executive, nevertheless, he is a fighter. He belongs to the old fighting stock of Virginia.

Governor Marshall is not a dodger. He has his opinions, and he lets them be known. While he is an organization man, he knows that organizations are not perfect—that they can make mistakes. If they make mistakes he thinks it is his duty to say so and get the saying over at the first possible moment.

BREAKING IT OPEN AGAIN

—C. R. Macaulay, New York World.

Mrs. Marshall is not satisfied with her domestic duties alone. She wants to do her share in problems of the political and business world. Mrs. Marshall is said to have discussed in detail with her husband his actions on the Baltimore convention, and when it was seen that Marshall was the man who was going to go on the ticket with Wilson he wanted to know what his wife thought about it.

"It won't be any harder than being governor of Indiana, and if the party thinks you are the man it only agrees with my opinion," she said, and that settled the matter with Governor Marshall.

Mrs. Marshall had the honor of being the first woman in Indiana to hold an office. She was appointed county clerk of Steuben county by her father and held that office for a number of years.

When Governor Marshall and his wife were about to be married she decided that her last official act of the office would be to make out the marriage license. Governor Marshall accompanied his wife to the county clerk's office and watched her with care as she noted the records in the big book and filled out the license and watched her as she carefully signed her father's name, with her own as deputy.

Mrs. Marshall, having blotted the ink, said, "Now we can go."

"Not yet," laughed Governor Marshall.

Why, we are all fixed," explained Mrs. Marshall, pointing to the license.

"Yes, but I have to pay for it," replied the governor. "It's all right for you to make it out, but it's up to me to pay the fee." And he did.

Mrs. Marshall is a keen student, and, having established the practice of going with her husband on all his trips, be they short or long, they make it a point to carry along some books.

Mrs. Marshall is as much of a humanitarian as the governor. A glance at some of the bills that have been passed by the 1911 Indiana legislature gives an insight into the governor:

To curtail child labor.
To regulate sale of cold storage products.

To require hygienic schoolhouses and medical examination of children. The prevent blindness at birth.

To regulate sale of cocaine and other drugs.

To provide free treatment for hydrophobia.

To establish public playgrounds.

To improve pure food laws.

To protect against loan sharks.

To provide police court matrons.

To prevent traffic in white slaves.

To permit night schools.

To require medical supplies as part of a train equipment.

Governor Marshall has also played an active part in providing for protection of labor, as is exemplified by the following acts:

To create a bureau of inspection for workshops, factories, mines and boilers.

To establish free employment agencies.

To require full train crews.

To require safety devices on switch engines.

To require efficient headlights on engines.

To require standard caboosees.

To provide weekly wage, etc.

And Governor Marshall has consulted with his "partner" on all these bills. He is quoted as saying a man can't go far wrong in taking the advice of a wife—if she is his partner as well as his wife.

The divided Republican party is like the boy "blowing" against the wind. There will be a lot of bluster, but it will not take votes away from Wilson and Marshall.

Having exhausted his supply of adjectives in denouncing Taft, Roosevelt is now leading a campaign of denunciation of every one who does not agree with himself.

Farmers have pulled against the short end of the yoke long enough. Wilson and Marshall promise to see that the pulling is made more nearly even.

ROLLA WELLS IS EARLY ON THE JOB

Democratic National Treasurer
Is After Small Contributor.

THE PEOPLE ARE TO HELP

There is to Be No "Tainted Money"
Used in Electing Wilson and Marshall.

New York.—A small, smooth shaved, middle-aged man with a coat of tan that gave evidence of much outdoor life recently came into the Waldorf carrying a suit case early in the afternoon and registered as "Rolla Wells, St. Louis, Mo."

The smooth shaved little man, who is to be the watchdog of the Wilson campaign money from now on, was asked for vital statistics, whereupon it was learned at first hand that he is a banker and ex-mayor of St. Louis, is fifty-six years old, was graduated at Princeton in 1876, or three years before Governor Wilson was graduated; that he has two sons who are Princeton men and a grandson who some day will be a Princeton man; that he had no notion of seeing New York this summer until the Wilson organization selected him as its treasurer and that just at present the one thing that sticks out in the appointment in his mind is that the new job cut in seriously upon a most beautiful vacation which he and Mrs. Wells had been enjoying in a camp at Little Traverse bay, Michigan.

Mr. Wells believes in getting at his desk at 8 o'clock in the morning.

"We are going to raise our campaign fund through the small contributions," said Mr. Wells.

"I am sure that a large part of the money will be raised by popular subscription."

"The people have confidence in Woodrow Wilson, and they will give what they can of their means to elect such a man president."

"I am a great believer in publishing broadcast, before and after election, the various contributions made."

"There are men who can well afford to give the committee $5,000, but I want to assure the public that we are not going to have any tainted money."

"We are appealing to the people, and we are relying on them to help elect Wilson and Marshall."

"I have two boys who have been graduated from Princeton, one five years ago and one seven. But it is not because ours is a Princeton family that I like Governor Wilson. He is a great big man and the type that we should have in public life."

Woodrow Wilson says this is not a time to be afraid to "speak out in meeting." That he was not afraid is demonstrated by his logical speech in accepting the Democratic nomination.

Roosevelt was willing to crawl from the White House to the capitol in 1908 if he could help his friend Root. Today he would like nothing better than meeting Root up a dark alley.

The Democrats are depending on the small contributor to help elect Wilson and Marshall. The appeal is being made to the people, and the people are responding.

The Democrats are not taking the election of Wilson for granted. They are working and working harder than in a score of years and working as a united party.

Farmers have awakened to the folly of the so-called blessings of a protective tariff.

Winning with Wilson means more than a mere Democratic victory. It means restoring real prosperity.

CIGAR BOXES OF CARDBOARD

Cheap Material Now Used in Exact
Imitation of the More Costly
Spanish Cedar.

There are now made cigar boxes of cardboard in such exact imitation of Spanish cedar boxes that they might anywhere be taken for the real things.

Three layers of a cardboard specially made for the purpose are pressed together to produce a board of precisely the right thickness, and then upon the outer side there is printed, from an engraved plate and with correct coloring, a photographic reproduction of a sheet of actual Spanish cedar; this reproduction showing the grain of the wood with all its variations and even the tiny little knots, if there are any.

The bottom and the sides for a cardboard box are cut out all in one piece, so that they require neither nailing nor sewing. The end pieces, cut out separately, are wire stitched in by machine, and then the cover is put on, being hinged with the usual piece of muslin.

These cardboard boxes made in imitation of cedar are finished in regulation manner, paper lined and with the usual paper flap to cover the cigars. The outer edges are paper bound in the usual fashion. In its finished state the box contains one nail, the nail always found at the center of the front edge of the cigar box to hold the cover down. These boxes sell for about 30 per cent. less than boxes made of wood.

LIKED THE SUBURBAN LIFE

Country on One Side and Town on the Other an Ideal Existence
for Writer.

The longer I live here the better satisfied I am in having pitched my earthly campfire, gypsylike, on the edge of a town, keeping it on one side, and the green fields, lanes and woods on the other. Each, in turn, is to me as a magnet to the needle.

At times the needle of my nature points towards the country. On that side everything is poetry. I wander over field and forest, and through me runs a glad current of feeling that is like a clear brook across the meadows of May.

At others the needle veers around, and I go to town—to the massed haunts of the highest animal and cannibal. That way nearly everything is prose. I can feel the prose rising in me as I step along, like hair on the back of a dog, long before any other dogs are in sight. And, indeed, the case is much that of a country dog come to town, so that growls are in order at every corner. The only being in the universe at which I have ever snarled, or with which I have rolled over in the mud and fought like a common cur, is man.—James Lane Allen.

American "Bush Ropes"
Curiously twisted "lanes," or bush ropes, are one of the chief of the many wonderful sights to be seen in the primeval forests of tropical America, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine. They are of great strength and durability, far tougher than the strongest rope. These "lanes" are generally light brown in color and run along the ground and then up into the branches of the trees, where they form fantastic loops. After this aerial journey they may run down to the ground again and thence climb once more to the top of the tallest trees, sometimes reaching several hundred feet in length, and putting out their leaves and flowers only at the tops of the trees. The very largest kind is called the Lantasso, or "monkey ladder," by the natives in Trinidad. One species, when cut, gives forth a stream of the purest cool water, which is a great boon to the thirsty traveler.

Very Easy Money.
An Abilene (Kan.) paper tells how a crowd of college boys, seeking work in the harvest fields, were buncoed in that town. The confidence man was a big, fine looking fellow and this was the talk he gave the collegians: "I'm J. J. Jackson. I'm looking for about twenty high grade harvesters for the Jackson ranch, which my father owns. We have several girls from the east visiting us, and as the women have to be alone a great deal, we don't want to depend on the ordinary class of labor. You fellows are college men, and you look all right to me. If you'll let me have a dollar as a pledge of good faith I'll take you along." Twenty in one group paid a dollar apiece, and that is the last any one saw of Mr. Jackson.

Madn't Had Time.
Miss Sentimental—Charles, did you ever allow your mind to pierce the secret of the universe, to reason that this dull, cold earth is but the sepulcher of ages past, that man in all his glory is but the soil we tread, which every breeze wafts in an ever-shifting mass, to be found and lost in an infinity of particles—the dust of centuries, reunited and dissolving as long as time shall endure?

Charles—No-o, I dunno as I did. You see, I've had to earn my living.

Some Satisfaction.

"Are you the landlord of this hotel?" asked the guest who had his baggage on the porch.

"I guess I be," answered the man with pale eyes.

"Well, I want to hand this little sentiment to you. Your hotel is positive the worst I have ever seen in this country, and I've traveled all over it."

"I know it," answered the landlord. "And I have a kinder pride in Lemme tell you something about it."

DOING NAPLES NOW

HAD TO BE VACCINATED

Because of Smallpox on Ship—Miss Corwin Tells Interesting Story of Her Travels in the Old World.

The following interesting letter from Miss Mae Corwin, who is now touring the old world, will be continued in tomorrow's issue. This will be followed in a few days by a letter on her visit to Rome.

Sorrento, July 22, 1912.—I suppose you have my cards from Naples and Pompeii, so you know I have taken this side trip. All the party came. It has been the greatest four days I ever spent.

To begin where I last left you. We arrived and pulled out of Gibraltar on schedule time with very little excitement. When at last the "Moltke" had appeared and we gathered on the pier to await the lighter we all regretted leaving Spain, for it proved a wonderful country to us and we had little hope of seeing a better. When the lighter arrived only four persons came off, instead of the whole ship load usually allowed to visit the place for a couple of hours. The Cook agent then informed us quietly that there was smallpox aboard and we must be vaccinated should we go aboard her. Cheerful, was it not? Well, we took a vote and decided to risk it (one case in first cabin) rather than wait two weeks for another vessel. So taking our courage in hand we went forward. We decided since all the water of Spain, plus her wines, had not bothered us, smallpox had a poor show.

We found a smaller and much nicer crowd this time, quite a lot of young men from New York and the east out of school. One crowd of four had traveled here before and could tell us very helpful things. They were now coming to make a walking tour of the Tyrolian Alps, then tours of Germany and Austro-Hungary. Lots of school teachers and several families, and everybody so well acquainted and mixed up by that time. The weather was perfect and the sea calm, so we enjoyed every minute of the ride.

Arrived about noon, July 18. Naples surely is a great city with a wonderful bay and fine mountains behind. We had a splendid view of rocky Sardinia and several small islands as we came in. Small boys, a beautiful bronze color, swam all around the steamer and dived for pennies. Beggars came out to meet us in row boats and held umbrellas up for our contributions. When drawn up at the dock they gathered below and displayed their stock in trade (various deformities), sang and otherwise tried to inveigle the reluctant pennies from our pockets. We also now saw a new race of soldiers. The quaintest were arrayed in a regulation dark suit, gun and belt, but the hat was a wonder. It was black patent leather, a round top sailor like a woman's and decorated with a breast and tall feathers of a bird—that black, greenish kind; we have some just like it at home—hanging gracefully over one side. They keep it at a rakish angle and it is held there by the chin strap. They are federals and go in pairs and surely show that the Italians enjoy a caricature.

Had no trouble at the customs house, where the Cook man checked us through sight unseen and we were again checked outside. They don't suspect a bunch of artists of carrying much plunder. We then began the carriage riding so popular on the continent. They take three persons in a cute one-horse victoria, with umbrella tied drunkenly on above, several miles for less than ten cents each. "When in doubt, call a cab," is now our byphrase.

Forgot to say we were all vaccinated in spite of protests. The passengers exhibited badly cut up arms, made by the Italian doctor, when they had been herded into it and we threatened a strike. The head steward had told abroad how our bunch had everything our way on the boat before and what a good time we had (we didn't know how he got these

To continue Naples: It is dirtier than Spain, has many interesting, narrow streets, where miles of steps go skyward and washings hang continuously. One flower street is beautiful with stalls on every step. The shops are all small and the coral and cameo ones simply dazzle the American eye. At night we heard the finest band concerts down in the park on the bay and ate Neapolitan ice cream with great relish.

We went through the National museum, much like all museums, except for the amount of Pompeian remains, which filled several rooms, and some of the old original marbles from Greece.

"Original" is our latest word now. Everything of value here is the original something, so we now have the word as a regular part of our slang vocabulary.

THE JURIES HUNG

IN CASES CHARGING VIOLATION OF CITY ORDINANCES.

CRISS CASE DISMISSED

Case Against A. O. Mason Will Be Tried Again Next Monday—Mayor and Police Judge Pretty Busy.

Wednesday afternoon and evening was a busy time in the city police court, as two cases, A. O. Mason and Roland Criss, charged with violating the automobile ordinance, were tried. A jury was summoned for both cases, and in both cases there was a hung jury.

The Mason case came up first, and the charge was exceeding the speed limit. The city's side of the case was represented by City Attorney W. E. Wiles, and Mr. Mason was represented by W. G. Sawyers and A. F. Harvey. A number of witnesses were examined and the case was not given to the jury until 5 o'clock, but they were unable to agree, the vote standing four for conviction and two for acquittal. The case against Mason will be re-tried next Monday.

The case against Roland Criss, charged with running a car and hauling passengers without a license, was the next case called, but the jury was unable to agree in this case, so the city dismissed the cases against Criss and Veyn Hanna, who was also charged with the same offense.

These cases were heard before Mayor Robey, acting police judge, in the city hall, and there was a large crowd in attendance all afternoon and evening.

THE SCHOOL MONEYS

HAVE BEEN APPORTIONED BY THE STATE SUPERINTENDENT.

MORE THAN LAST YEAR

There are 18,555 Public School Teachers in Missouri—Most of Them Receive Less Than $1,000.

W. P. Evans, State superintendent of public schools, Tuesday made public the official apportionment to the public schools of Missouri, by counties, of state funds.

The statement shows how much is allotted to each division and St. Louis, the attendance, total days attendance, total teachers, number of teachers with a salary more than $1,000 a year and number of part time teachers.

As was published a week ago the total amount allotted is $1,804,070.14, which is $42,833 more than last year. The new law governing the distribution of school money goes into effect with this apportionment, counties and St. Louis only receiving funds according to the number of children actually enrolled in and attending public schools daily and according to the number of teachers employed.

No allotment is made for children who attend parochial or other private schools and institutions or for children of school age, who do not attend, as formerly was the case.

Under this arrangement St. Louis receives $325,834.14, which is less by $29,593 than a year ago. Jackson county, including Kansas City, also shows a decrease, receiving $147,896.22, which is $4,447 less.

The new law favors counties which have no large cities or towns, and, therefore, fewer parochial and private schools. School districts can increase their allotment by encouraging attendance and increasing the length of their term. Buchanan county, in which is St. Joseph, to the contrary of this rule shows an increase over last year of $2,898.42, the amount for 1912 being $45,096.28.

This county showed a tremendous loss last year over 1910 because of padded census and school figures. Counties like Gasconade, Franklin and Cole, in which is Jefferson City; Ste. Genevieve, Warren, St. Charles, Cape Girardeau, Marion, New Madrid, Cooper and Greene, in which is Springfield; Osage, Perry, St. Louis and Stoddard, which contain parochial and similar schools, show a loss in amount of funds set aside for them over last year.

Bollinger, Butler, Camden, Carter, Christian, Dent, Douglas, Dunklin, Iron, Laclede, Lawrence, Mississippi, Newton, Oregon, Ozark, Pemiscot, Perry, Reynolds, Scott, Shannon, Stone, Washington and Webster, which have short school terms, also show a decrease, due to the children being kept at home at certain times to assist in work.

There are, according to Evans' report, 1,907 teachers in the public schools of the state who receive more than $1,000 a year, of which number 1,427 are in St. Louis, 250 in and around Kansas City and forty-one in Buchanan county, including St. Joseph. Then there are 14,408 public school teachers in Missouri with more than fifteen pupils each, who receive less than $1,000, the majority receiving not more than half of that sum.

In all there are 18,555 teachers connected with the public schools of Missouri. The apportionment for attendance is made on the basis of a little over a cent a day for each pupil.

The total amount set aside for school purposes for 1912 was $1,832,746. After allowance and deductions have been made because of errors, etc., the amount left to be apportioned is $1,804,070.14.

Home Health Club

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER,
LaPorte, Ind.

Causes of Infections—Now that the summer vacation season is here, it becomes necessary to guard against public causes of infection. The things one should especially guard against are flies, public drinking cups, public towels, bad drinking water and infected foods.

Public drinking cups should be of all things avoided. It is dangerous enough to have to drink the bad water that is often contained in the tanks on railway cars, steamboats, etc., but the public cup there is awful to think about. Persons with the vilest diseases use them as well as those with other contagious diseases, whose name is legion. Just think of the microbes they may leave.

Carry your own drinking cup wherever you go, especially when traveling, for you never know beforehand when thirst may impel you to drink water in some public place.

Children going to school should everyone have a drinking cup of his or her own. There are children at school from the very hot beds of disease, filth and other contagious infections, and it is miraculous that more disease is not conveyed to the other children by this means. There is more than enough, however, and far more than the average parent knows of; far more than is generally supposed.

Another similar danger is the public towel. The same rule that applies to the public drinking cup also applies to this.

When you come to think of it, is it not awful to use a towel that someone with sore eyes, catarrh, tuberculosis, scrofula, syphilis, or other terrible and infectious disease has been using? And how are you to know who wiped his eyes, face, nose, mouth on the same towel? It is repulsive, very, when you come to think of it. And it is just such hammering as this that finally succeeds in making you think of it.

The dog is often mentioned as man's most faithful friend. But this is no reason why these pets should be allowed to carry contagion to you and your household. Dogs and cats go everywhere about the premises, or streets where filth is, and of the two classes of animals the dog is the worst in matter of filth. He will gnaw a bone that is swarming with deadly germs. Not deadly to him, because his stomach and general make-up is built on another plan from that of the human. But he mixes in with all kinds of nastiness, fights or fondles other dogs and carries germs in his mouth, in his hair, and then comes and licks your hand or the hands and faces of the children, thus spreading typhoid, tuberculosis, diphtheria, smallpox, or anything that he has been in contact with.

Do not let people kiss and hug your children. Many a case of consumption has been conveyed by a kiss. There are always ways to prevent it without being rude. If you have not that much tact, try to achieve it.

The Home Health Club dwells upon these matters because it cannot conscientiously subscribe to any half-way measures so far as the conservation of health hygiene, sanitation, and all such interests are concerned.

Club Notes.

Dear Doctor: I am past 70 years old. Have had fairly good health most of my life, but my kidneys are not in good condition this warm weather. Urine is scant, high-colored and salty. Urination is not painful but scant. Am constipated at times. Eat well, sleep well, and do chores.

MRS. E. E.

There are probably two causes of your trouble. First, it is quite likely that you are eating food that is too heavy and too highly concentrated for you. A person of your age must necessarily be careful of what he eats and especially so during the hot summer season. You should not eat meat often than once daily, nor very little starch food, such as mashed or fried potatoes and white bread. Whole wheat bread and Graham bread, fresh fruits and vegetables, and fresh buttermilk should, in the main be your diet during the summer.

Second, you are probably not drinking enough water. At your age you should drink freely of water; several glasses daily, the first thing in the morning, between meals, and the last thing at night. And you should see to it that it is not hard or lime water. Distilled or pure filtered rain water should be the best.

Old age is simply ossification, which is caused by an excess of calcareous matter in the veins. Good pure filtered rain water is the greatest solvent known. By its continuous use the old age matter in the veins is dissolved to some extent. It also benefits the kidneys and the bladder.

People seldom live to a great age who are forced to use hard water. Those living in limestone districts should use the filtered rain water.

Dear Doctor: Have a pain in small of back when I lift or bend. Have to get up at night five or six times to urinate. I am 51 years old, but active. Have been troubled this way for about five or six years, off and on.

MRS. M. A.

Your condition seems to be one which would ordinarily be called rheumatic lumbago. You also have some inflammation of the kidneys. In Vol. 2 of the Home Health Club books, under the heading "Lumbago," is given a good treatment for such cases. Very hot fomentations from the middle of the spine down will give you almost immediate relief. For the kidney trouble you need to correct your diet so as to exclude pork and rich, heavy foods, such as too much starchy and sweet foods and pastry. The buttermilk diet, which I have so often mentioned in my lectures, would be a very good diet in your case. Rich foods overwork the kidneys and simple abstemious diet would give them a chance to rest and recuperate. A skillful osteopath would probably find some trouble in the lower part of the spine.

Orator Who Nearly Lost His Pants.

In the September American Magazine appears the following about a delegate at the Baltimore convention who made a speech:

"The crowd listened approvingly to a frenzied speech from a Southwestern statesman who introduced an entirely new gesture. With his right hand outstretched he made wild cutes at his shoulder with his left hand thumb. It turned out that this was no mere affectation to emphasize his rhetoric, but that his 'galluses' were slipping. He remarked to a fellow delegate as he came down from the platform: 'I darn near lost my pants.'"

PENROSE TELLS OF ARCHBOLD CHECK

Makes Long Speech in Senate Regarding Campaign Money.

CLAIMED BLISS ASKED FOR MORE

Floor Was Crowded With Those Eager to Hear Announced Explanation—Promised Further Disclosures Later.

Washington, Aug. 22.—In a careful, deliberate speech in the senate Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania replied to the charges made regarding a certificate of deposit for $25,000 sent to him by John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company, in 1904.

Penrose admitted receiving that sum from Archbold, but said it was part of a contribution of $125,000 made by Archbold to the Republican national campaign fund, $100,000 of which amount, he said, went to the Republican national committee and $25,000 to himself for use in Pennsylvania.

Says Roosevelt Knew.

Penrose had read by the clerk a newspaper interview with Colonel Roosevelt in which the latter was quoted as saying that Penrose had nothing to do with the presidential campaign of 1904. The senator said he was a member of the national committee, chairman of Pennsylvania state committee and conducted the campaign in Pennsylvania.

"President Roosevelt had been advised of the contribution," Senator Penrose declared. He said that later Cornelius N. Bliss, then treasurer of the national committee, asked for another contribution of $150,000 from Archbold and his associates in the Standard Oil company.

William Flinn, Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania, was scored by Penrose. The senator charged that in 1904 Flinn offered him and Israel W. Durham $1,000.00 or $2,000.000 if they would favor his candidacy to the senate to succeed Senator Quay. Senator Penrose read what purported to be copies of telegrams to show that Flinn asked John D. Archbold to assist him in getting the election.

Culberson Bill Called Up.

The galleries of the senate were filled and were bright with feminine finery in response to the announcement that Senator Penrose was to speak. The floor was crowded with senators and members of the house. He read his speech from printed proofs and talked slowly and impressively.

At the conclusion of his speech the senator promised further disclosures. Senator Culberson of Texas called up his bill forbidding campaign contributions by corporations and limiting the amount to be contributed by individuals to $5,000.

A filibuster developed against the measure and after 38 senators had forced a half dozen rollcalls on it the senate was forced to adjourn.

KANSANS ARE AGAIN ENJOINED

SECOND SUIT AFFECTS SECRETARY OF STATE ONLY.

Notified by Wire to Make no Move Regarding Roosevelt Electors Till Cases Are Heard.

Topeka, Aug. 22.—The restraining order of Federal Judge Smith McPherson of the United States court at Red Oak, Ia., to stop the names of the Roosevelt electors going on the ballot in Kansas is a topic of excited discussion throughout the state.

A second injunction suit to the same end was filed before Judge McPherson.

A temporary restraining order was granted just before 11 o'clock and Charles Sessions, secretary of state, was notified by telegraph not to make any move until the injunction had been heard.

The first order served came too late to do any good. D. R. Hite, chief of the Taft attorneys, went to Red Oak early in the morning and asked for an entirely new injunction directed solely against Sessions as secretary of state. The same allegations of fraud, misrepresentation and disenfranchisement is set up in the new suit filed and the order of Judge McPherson simply prohibits the secretary of state from issuing any certificates of nomination to the Kansas county clerks.

The first suit was brought to stop the state canvassing board from issuing any certificates of nomination to the eight Roosevelt men. But the certificate already had been issued. The new suit brought will be heard by Judge Sanborn the date set for the first injunction proceeding.

Goodwater, Mo.—"Ever since I was a little girl," says Mrs. Riley Laramore, "I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia. I suffered misery after eating, and had terrible heartburn."

I thought I had to suffer this way as long as I lived, but when I began to take Thedford's Black-Draught, in small doses, every night, the heartburn was all gone in a few days, and I could eat without distress.

I took two small packages in all, and although that was some time ago, the dyspepsia has not returned.

I speak a good word for Thedford's Black-Draught whenever I have the opportunity."

If eating causes distress, we urge you to try Thedford's Black-Draught. It cleanses the system, helps the stomach to digest its food, regulates the bowels, and stimulates the liver.

It acts gently and is without bad after-effects. Try it. Price 25c.

SECRET SERVICE CHIEF RESIGNS

W. J. Flynn to Assist in Probe of New York Police Scandal.

WAS HEAD OF DETECTIVE BUREAU

Announcement Causes a Sensation Among Officials—District Attorney Offers $5,000 Reward for Missing Gang Men.

Washington, Aug. 22.—William J. Flynn, chief of the New York secret service, plans to resign his federal position temporarily, to assist the committee of New York aldermen in their sweeping investigation of police conditions in New York revealed by the scandal growing out of the Rosenthal murder.

Flynn's Action a Surprise.

New York, Aug. 22.—The news from Washington that William J. Flynn is to assist the graft investigation caused a sensation in police circles. Flynn, for six months, was head of the detective bureau, the position now held by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty.

His publicly stated reason for resigning was that his powers had been curtailed and his efforts to close up gambling resorts had been interfered with. He declared there were several high police officials who were crooks and that when he had given evidence of their dishonesty to his superiors nothing had been done about it.

District Attorney Whitman charged that "some members" of the police department knowingly permitted the escape of "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie," the missing gangsters indicted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

Says Police Know Murderers.

The district attorney announced the offer of a reward of $5,000 for the capture of the fugitives.

The prosecutor in a formal statement said:

"This reward is not offered to any member of the police department or anybody in their employ.

"In taking this position I am actuated by the belief that if proper police work had been done these men would now be in custody. The city of New York is paying millions of dollars annually to the police department whose duty it is to detect crime and apprehend criminals and I can not escape the conclusion that some members of the police department have known if they do not now know, the whereabouts of these murderers."

Private citizens made it possible for the district attorney to offer the reward. Circulars describing the two men will be sent broadcast.

Detectives Let Him Go.

One of the district attorney's reasons for suspecting that the police have allowed the two to escape was indicated when it became known that Sam Schepps, in his testimony before the grand jury said that three detectives from New York police headquarters had recognized him while he was hiding in Fallsbury, N. Y., and had deliberately allowed him to escape. These detectives were three of five sent to the region to find him and arrest him on the charge of murder which the police had made against him.

Oklahoma City Man Wants Lights Out at Midnight so Fowls Will Behave Themselves.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 22.—John Sherwin has asked the city commissioners to have the street arc lights turned off at midnight for a most unusual reason.

Sherwin lives a hundred feet from a corner light and every night his chickens go out under the big electric light and feast on the hundreds of grasshoppers attracted there and cannot be induced to leave the feast. "Sometimes the chickens remain up all night," said Sherwin, "and go back to roost about daylight. They are drowsy all day and the hens do not lay."

Sherwin says the rooster demoralized his flock by straying out late one evening and discovering the grasshoppers. He gallantly called the hens.

TOMATO LABELS MUST NOT LIE

Department of Agriculture Ruling Makes Reprinting of 24,000,000 Necessary.

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—Twenty-four million labels for canned tomatoes must be reprinted to satisfy a ruling of the federal agricultural department.

That department has ruled that only "Solid Pack" cans may bear the label "Tomatoes." One made of juice and pulp must be labeled "Puree made from tomato trimmings, with at least one pound of tomatoes."

In accordance with this ruling, C. H. Butler, general manager of California Fruit Cannery's association, said orders had been sent out that substitute labels be used on approximately 1,000,000 cases already labeled

PRESIDENT YUAN SHI KAI

President Yuan of the Chinese Republic has aroused a storm by the summary execution of a number of southern generals, formerly of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's party, who were suspected of conspiracy. Yuan's own life may be in danger.

FIGHTING AGAIN AT WU CHANG

GRAVE UNEASINESS OVER FOREIGNERS AT HANKOW.

Present Trouble Believed Due to Killing of Republican Generals by Yuan Shi Kai.

Shanghai, Aug. 22.—That desperate fighting is in progress at Wu Chang is confirmed by a dispatch from Hankow. The nature of the outbreak is unknown, although it is taken for granted that it grows out of President Yuan Shi Kai's recent killing of two Republican generals. Wu Chang is Vice-President Li's headquarters.

Hankow and Hanyang constitute virtually one great city. They are separated from one another by the Yangtze river. Hankow has a large foreign settlement and grave uneasiness is felt for its safety.

Vice-President Li has supported President Yuan hitherto, but is understood to have been estranged from him by Yuan's attempt to become dictator.

One theory is that friends of the dead generals, accepting Yuan's lead, have attacked Li. Another is that Yuan's friends initiated the attack because he has become the president's enemy.

At all events, it is feared the outbreak marks a resumption of civil war.

Many republican Chinese favor making Li president of southern China and declaring war on the northern provinces, where Yuan is in control. Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first provisional president, undoubtedly would be chosen, but few believe he will escape alive from Peking, whither he has gone to investigate the killing of the two generals.

Yuan Shi-Kai has been playing both ends against the middle in China and so far he has met with success.

Through his influence the imperial family was provided with pensions and abdicated. Then Yuan was elected president.

SELF ASSESSMENT SUCCESSFUL

Passaic, N. J., Depended on Honor of Property Owners—Net Gain Was $5,300,000.

Passaic, N. J., Aug. 22.—The city commission, which went into office here a year ago, has won a handsome profit for the city by practically permitting large property owners to tax themselves.

Insisting that the values on the tax rolls in previous years had been too low, the commission this year asked the mill owners to furnish inventories of their own property. In most cases the owners gave estimates greatly in advance of the figures at which their property had been previously assessed. One company voluntarily raised its assessment from $600,000 to $1,500,000. The net gain obtained by this method over the assessment figures of 1911 was $5,300,000.

HARVESTER CASE ABOUT READY

Geo. W. Perkins and Other Officials Appear Before Special Examiner Next Month.

Washington, Aug. 22.—George W. Perkins, with other officials of the so-called harvester trust, will be called before a special examiner next month at Chicago, to give testimony in the proceedings which the government has instituted for dissolution of the alleged combine.

It is estimated that the task of taking this testimony will last three months.

Department officials have been working all summer to get their case in shape. All the phases of the many business activities of the harvester trust have been thoroughly investigated. Subpoenas will be issued to obtain the attendance of the first witnesses about September 15.

Killed by a Plow.

Enid, Ok., Aug. 22.—Mrs. Catherine Mortz was killed while plowing on a farm three miles northeast of here. She used a whip on one of the horses and caused it to jump, throwing Mrs. Mortz between two plowshares and breaking her back.

VOTED TO RETAIN COMMERCE COURT

For the Third Time House Passes Bill Over Veto of President.

FAILED TO PASS IN THE SENATE

Compromise Finally Reached Continuing Appropriation Till March 4—Leaders Believe Measure Will Now Be Signed.

Washington, Aug. 22.—For the third time the house passed the legislative, executive and judicial bill over the veto of President Taft by a vote of 154 to 53, but in the senate the effort to pass it failed, 34 to 27. As a result the house amended the measure to provide a continuing appropriation for the commerce court until March 4, 1913, passed it and it now lies with the senate appropriation committee with good prospects that it will pass the senate.

This is a chronological resume of the progress of the bill for the day. The solution of the deadlock between congress and the White house is believed to have been found and as a result adjournment now looms appreciably nearer.

Reached Senate Too Late.

There was a marked difference between the passage of the bill in the house over the president's veto and its passage in amended form. When it was found that the chief executive had been overruled by a 3 to 1 vote there was a tumult of applause. When it was put through after the failure of the senate to follow the house's lead there were fewer than 30 members in their seats, there was no debate and scarcely an audible vote. It reached the senate too late to be acted on.

When the senate refused to overrule the president, Senators Crane and Smoot carried the news to the White house.

No intimation was given at the White house as to whether the new compromise would be acceptable to the president, but senate and house leaders are confident the measure will be signed.

Will Taft Sign it?

Many of the Republicans contend that the appropriation for the commerce court should be extended until June 30, the end of the fiscal year, but they are not insistent and it was the general belief of the majority leaders in the house that the contention would not be pressed.

While the senate has taken no action on the legislative appropriation bill, a majority of the members of that body, anxious to hasten an adjournment, favor meeting the terms of the house in the belief the president will then sign the bill.

Progress on Army Bill.

A tentative agreement was reached over the army appropriation bill, but the matter was reopened by the conferees later. It is understood an agreement had been made affecting the eligibility of officers to the position of chief of staff, which members of the senate later objected to.

A final agreement on the army bill probably will be reached early in the morning.

HOPPERS GET OKLAHOMA TOWNS

People Driven Into Homes at Tulsa by Insects—Stop Interurban Traffic at Sapulpa.

Tulsa, Ok., Aug. 22.—Tulsa was captured by an army of grasshoppers. The hoppers arrived early at night and their approach was attended with a noise like a hailstorm. They drove people from the streets, forced an entrance into dwelling houses and made life miserable for the occupants. By morning the streets were paved with grasshoppers. Many people carried umbrellas to protect themselves from the pests. The grasshopper army came from the north and is moving southward through the state.

Sapulpa, Ok., Aug. 22.—Myriads of grasshoppers arrived from the north, crippling interurban and city electric line traffic. Hundreds of chickens are reported to have died eating the insects. Gardens, lawns, alfalfa and shade trees are being damaged.

Broken Propeller Delays Olympic.

London, Aug. 22.—The White Star steamship Olympic, which left New York with a blade of one of its propellers missing, is expected to reach Plymouth late Saturday. The passengers will be landed at Plymouth instead of Southampton, and the vessel will go to Belfast, where its propeller will be repaired.

Father Shot in Quarrel Over Girl.

Shreveport, La., Aug. 22.—Thomas P. Whitehead warned Joseph Dwyer, 18 years old, that he must not brush against young Miss Whitehead as she walked along the street. "Come out and we'll talk it over," replied Dwyer. Whitehead walked out and was shot dead. Dwyer is in jail.

Bolt Caused $160,000 Fire.

Coffeyville, Kan., Aug. 22.—Lightning struck crude oil tanks and caused a loss of $160,000 at the National Refining company here. A two-inch rain fell.

MRS. TOM'S PART IN THE ELECTION

Governor Marshall's Wife Has
the Memory for Names.

ROMANCE OF THEIR LIVES

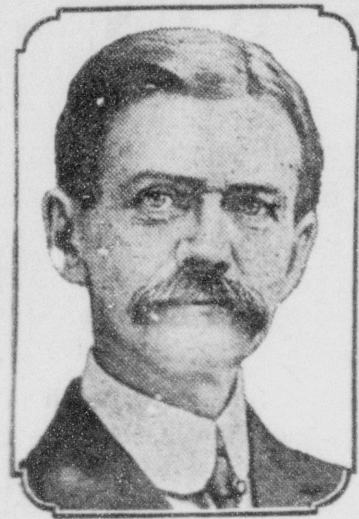

The Notification of the Indiana Executive for Democratic Vice-Presidency Honors a Record-Breaker.

By J. C. HAMMOND.
Of Democratic National Publicity Bureau.

Indianapolis.—Just about the time that thousands of friends of Governor Thomas Riley Marshall were anxiously waiting to shake his hand in congratulation on his acceptance as candidate of vice-president on the Democratic ticket, a smiling woman stepped before him, and if one could have heard what she whispered in his ear it would have been something like "Now, hurry in, Tom, and change your clothes."

And Tom Marshall forgot to shake hands with the enthusiastic friends until he had carried out the orders of Mrs. Tom.

Indiana has honored four of her sons as vice-presidential candidates on the Democratic ticket, but the crowds that greeted Governor Marshall in the big coliseum in the state fair grounds, Indianapolis, on Tuesday were the greatest in the history of the party.

THOMAS R. MARSHALL.

The west wanted to show the east what could be done in notification honors, and, while Mrs. Marshall was happy, of course, over the honors for her husband, she was also worried, for her husband comes mighty close to being father, husband, son and partner all in one. And when a woman has that combination on her hands to care for she has every right to be worried.

Governor Marshall will never gain any honors as a hammer thrower. He is not built that way.

While all the country was reading the vigorous words of Governor Marshall which told the voters what he expects Democracy to do in carrying out the pledges for the next four years it's worth while to know what part a woman is taking in the affairs of the campaign—how Tom Marshall happens to be in the position in which he stands today.

The good people of Columbia City, Ind., never thought Thomas Riley Marshall was a "marrying man." For forty years he had lived with his parents, nursing both his father and mother, who were invalids, which was the reason Governor Marshall was not a marrying man. He felt his first duty was to his parents.

Meeting Mrs. Marshall.
After the death of his parents Governor Marshall dived deeper into his law practice, and one day an urgent case took him to Angola, Ind. His duties called him to the county clerk's office, and there he met Miss Lois Kimsey, daughter of the county clerk, who was assisting her father in the office.

From that day Governor Marshall had more business around the county clerk's office in Angola than any lawyer in half a dozen nearby counties.

Governor Marshall was forty-two years of age when he was married, Mrs. Marshall being nearly twenty years his junior.

The Marshalls had been married only a few weeks when the future vice-president was called to an adjoining county on a case that would consume some five or six weeks of his time.

"Now, I did not want to be starting off like that," Governor Marshall explained to a friend one day, "so I just told Mrs. Marshall that I thought she should go along. And she did."

Since then Governor Marshall has never made a trip without Mrs. Marshall going along. They have traveled all over the country together; they go to banquets and political meetings together until the friends of the Indiana executive refer to him and his wife as the "pards."

"Tom Marshall is not over strong," explained one of his friends. "While not a delicate man, his constitution is not of the most vigorous type."

"When he gets into a political battle he forgets his weakness. He gives all that is in him, and that will tell on any man. Mrs. Marshall soon discovered that the governor would become heated in making a speech and the next day his voice would be husky. She decided that he had better give up some of the handshaking and take care of his health first. So when you find him making a speech when he has finished he does not stay around to hear the applause of the audience. Rather, he hurries to his room and changes his clothing.

"Some people have said that Tom Marshall is not a handshaking politician. He is not. His wife thinks it is more important to guard his health than to carry out the old time policy, and she is correct, as she is in most all other things."

"Home Air" Prevails.

The Marshall home is typical of the mistress. It is a home of books, and still one does not feel "bookish." One of the Marshall friends said he always felt like eating when he entered the Marshall home in Columbia City or the executive mansion at Indianapolis.

Mrs. Marshall believes in a home first, and the "home air" prevails.

"If Governor Marshall ever occupied the White House people would not know that historic institution," declares an admirer. "Mrs. Marshall would have it a real home. People would feel comfortable even in the midst of the gold and glitter."

But it is not only as a wife and the mistress of a home that Mrs. Marshall shows her ability. She is a politician and a clever one. She also has a remarkable memory.

Governor Marshall has earned the reputation of being in a class of story tellers all by himself. He can remember stories, but he forgets names. A name is something to be cast aside with Governor Marshall, and this is one of the regrets of his life, if he has any regrets. The governor is not a worrying man. He is somewhat of a fatalist, but if he could he would like to remember names; but, not having that ability, he does not worry, for Mrs. Marshall is the name rememberer of the family.

She has a peculiar ability along this line. Not only does she remember the last name, but any combination of names comes as second nature to her, and she carries this ability on down to the children and cousins of any one seeking the governor.

While the governor is shaking hands and trying to remember whether his caller is Jones or Smith, Mrs. Marshall is busy supplying the information and asking about all the relatives.

Ideal Partners.
Governor Marshall has no brothers or sisters, and his parents being dead leaves him somewhat barren of relatives.

Governor Marshall's friends are enthusiastic over his home life. When he has started on talking of his wife a new light in the Hoosier executive comes to the surface.

They come near being ideal married partners.

"I was talking to Tom one day," explained one of his most intimate friends. "We were leaning back, and Tom had been telling some of his good stories to illustrate various topics of our conversation. We were waiting for Mrs. Marshall to come back from a shopping tour, and I happened to remark that I liked Mrs. Marshall better every time I met her."

"Well, now that's the way she strikes me, Jim," he said. "We have been married some sixteen years, and as time goes that is a long or short period, just as you think. To me it is but a fleeting day. Then I think back over my married life and find I have grown to know Mrs. Marshall better every day. A man must not only love but he must also respect his partner in this life—respect her in all things. She must have wonderful qualities to make the love and respect grow deeper and better each day. That's been my history."

"The fact that Mrs. Marshall has been in sympathy in my work, my play, my life, is good. But I have been in sympathy with hers. Ours is not a one sided life. We have been partners, and that's the way it should be in this world."

Mrs. Marshall has watched over his administration of the affairs of Indiana with a jealous care. There has been nothing of the spectacular in his administration. It has been a sane government. The laws that he has fought for and won show the spirit of the man. They are uplifting. They deal with the improvement of man, woman and child.

While Governor Marshall is described as a "tender hearted" executive, nevertheless, he is a fighter. He belongs to the old fighting stock of Virginia.

Governor Marshall is not a dodger. He has his opinions, and he lets them be known. While he is an organization man, he knows that organizations are not perfect—that they can make mistakes. If they make mistakes he thinks it is his duty to say so and get the saying over at the first possible moment.

BREAKING IT OPEN AGAIN

—C. R. Macauley, New York World.

Mrs. Marshall is not satisfied with her domestic duties alone. She wants to do her share in problems of the political and business world. Mrs. Marshall is said to have discussed in detail with her husband his actions on the Baltimore convention, and when it was seen that Marshall was the man who was going to go on the ticket with Wilson he wanted to know what his wife thought about it.

"It won't be any harder than being governor of Indiana, and if the party thinks you are the man it only agrees with my opinion," she said, and that settled the matter with Governor Marshall.

Mrs. Marshall had the honor of being the first woman in Indiana to hold an office. She was appointed county clerk of Steuben county by her father and held that office for a number of years.

When Governor Marshall and his wife were about to be married she decided that her last official act of the office would be to make out the marriage license. Governor Marshall accompanied his wife to the county clerk's office and watched her with care as she noted the records in the big book and filled out the license and watched her as she carefully signed her father's name, with her own as deputy.

Mrs. Marshall, having blotted the ink, said, "Now we can go."

"Not yet," laughed Governor Marshall.

Why, we are all fixed," explained Mrs. Marshall, pointing to the license. "Yes, but I have to pay for it," replied the governor. "It's all right for you to make it out, but it's up to me to pay the fee." And he did.

Mrs. Marshall is a keen student, and, having established the practice of going with her husband on all his trips, be they short or long, they make it a point to carry along some books.

Mrs. Marshall is as much of a humanitarian as the governor. A glance at some of the bills that have been passed by the 1911 Indiana legislature gives an insight into the governor.

To curtail child labor.

To regulate sale of cold storage products.

To require hygienic schoolhouses and medical examination of children.

To prevent blindness at birth.

To regulate sale of cocaine and other drugs.

To provide free treatment for hydrophobia.

To establish public playgrounds.

To improve pure food laws.

To protect against loan sharks.

To provide police court matrons.

To prevent traffic in white slaves.

To permit night schools.

To require medical supplies as part of a train equipment.

Governor Marshall has also played an active part in providing for protection of labor, as is exemplified by the following acts:

To create a bureau of inspection for workshops, factories, mines and boilers.

To establish free employment agencies.

To require full train crews.

To require safety devices on switch engines.

To require efficient headlights on engines.

To require standard cabooses.

To provide weekly wages, etc.

And Governor Marshall has consulted with his "partner" on all these bills. He is quoted as saying a man can't go far wrong in taking the advice of a wife—if she is his partner as well as his wife.

The divided Republican party is like the boy "blowing" against the wind. There will be a lot of bluster, but it will not take votes away from Wilson and Marshall.

ROLLA WELLS IS EARLY ON THE JOB

Democratic National Treasurer
Is After Small Contributor.

THE PEOPLE ARE TO HELP

There is to Be No "Tainted Money"
Used in Electing Wilson and Marshall.

New York.—A small, smooth shaved, middle-aged man with a coat of tan that gave evidence of much outdoor life recently came into the Waldorf carrying a suit case early in the afternoon and registered as "Rolla Wells, St. Louis, Mo."

The smooth shaved little man, who is to be the watchdog of the Wilson campaign money from now on, was asked for vital statistics, whereupon it was learned at first hand that he is a banker and ex-mayor of St. Louis. He is fifty-six years old, was graduated at Princeton in 1876, or three years before Governor Wilson was graduated; that he has two sons who are Princeton men and a grandson who some day will be a Princeton man; that he had no notion of seeing New York this summer until the Wilson organization selected him as its treasurer and that just at present the one thing that sticks out in the appointment in his mind is that the new job cut in seriously upon a most beautiful vacation which he and Mrs. Wells had been enjoying in a camp at Little Traverse bay, Michigan.

Mr. Wells believes in getting at his desk at 8 o'clock in the morning.

"We are going to raise our campaign fund through the small contributions," said Mr. Wells.

"I am sure that a large part of the money will be raised by popular subscription."

"The people have confidence in Woodrow Wilson, and they will give what they can of their means to elect such a man president."

"I am a great believer in publishing broadcast, before and after election, the various contributions made."

"There are men who can well afford to give the committee $5,000, but I want to assure the public that we are not going to have any tainted money."

"We are appealing to the people, and we are relying on them to help elect Wilson and Marshall."

"I have two boys who have been graduated from Princeton, one five years ago and one seven. But it is not because ours is a Princeton family that I like Governor Wilson. He is a great big man and the type that we should have in public life."

Woodrow Wilson says this is not a time to be afraid to "speak out in meeting." That he was not afraid is demonstrated by his logical speech in accepting the Democratic nomination.

Roosevelt was willing to crawl from the White House to the capitol in 1908 if he could help his friend Root. Today he would like nothing better than meeting Root up a dark alley.

The Democrats are depending on the small contributor to help elect Wilson and Marshall. The appeal is being made to the people, and the people are responding.

The Democrats are not taking the election of Wilson for granted. They are working and working harder than in a score of years and working as a united party.

Farmers have awakened to the folly of the so-called blessings of a protective tariff.

Winning with Wilson means more than a mere Democratic victory. It means restoring real prosperity.

CIGAR BOXES OF CARDBOARD

Cheap Material Now Used in Exact
Imitation of the More Costly
Spanish Cedar.

There are now made cigar boxes of cardboard in such exact imitation of Spanish cedar boxes that they might anywhere be taken for the real things.

Three layers of a cardboard specially made for the purpose are pressed together to produce a board of precisely the right thickness, and then upon the outer side there is printed, from an engraved plate and with correct coloring, a photographic reproduction of a sheet of actual Spanish cedar; this reproduction showing the grain of the wood with all its variations and even the tiny little knots, if there are any.

The bottom and the sides for a cardboard box are cut out all in one piece, so that they require neither nailing nor sewing. The end pieces, cut out separately, are wire stitched in by machine, and then the cover is put on, being blinged with the usual piece of muslin.

These cardboard boxes made in imitation of cedar are finished in regulation manner, paper lined and with the usual paper flap to cover the cigars. The outer edges are paper bound in the usual fashion. In its finished state the box contains one nail, the nail always found at the center of the front edge of the cigar box to hold the cover down. These boxes sell for about 30 per cent. less than boxes made of wood.

LIKED THE SUBURBAN LIFE

Country on One Side and Town on the Other an Ideal Existence
for Writer.

The longer I live here the better satisfied I am in having pitched my earthly campfire, gypsylike, on the edge of a town, keeping it on one side, and the green fields, lanes and woods on the other. Each, in turn, is to me as a magnet to the needle.

At times the needle of my nature points towards the country. On that side everything is poetry. I wander over field and forest, and through me runs a glad current of feeling that is like a clear brook across the meadows of May.

At others the needle veers around, and I go to town—to the massed haunts of the highest animal and cannibal. That way nearly everything is prose. I can feel the prose rising in me as I step along, like hair on the back of a dog, long before any other dogs are in sight. And, indeed, the case is much that of a country dog come to town, so that growls are in order at every corner. The only being in the universe at which I have ever snarled, or with which I have rolled over in the mud and fought like a common cur, is man.—James Lane Allen.

American "Bush Ropes"

Curiously twisted "lanes," or bush ropes, are one of the chief of the many wonderful sights to be seen in the primeval forests of tropical America, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine. They are of great strength and durability, far tougher than the strongest rope. These "lanes" are generally light brown in color and run along the ground and then up into the branches of the trees, where they form fantastic loops. After this aerial journey they may run down to the ground again and thence climb once more to the top of the tallest trees, sometimes reaching several hundred feet in length, and putting out their leaves and flowers only at the tops of the trees. The very largest kind is called the lantasso, or "monkey ladder," by the natives in Trinidad. One species, when cut, gives forth a stream of the purest cool water, which is a great boon to the thirsty traveler.

Very Easy Money.

An Abilene (Kan.) paper tells how a crowd of college boys, seeking work in the harvest fields, were uncoined in that town. The confidence man was a big, fine looking fellow and this was the talk he gave the collegians: "I'm J. J. Jackson. I'm looking for about twenty high grade harvesters for the Jackson ranch, which my father owns. We have several girls from the east visiting us, and as the women have to be alone a great deal, we don't want to depend on the ordinary class of labor. You fellows are college men, and you look all right to me. If you'll let me have a dollar as a pledge of good faith I'll take you along." Twenty in one group paid a dollar apiece, and that is the last any one saw of Mr. Jackson.

Hadn't Had Time.

Miss Sentimental—Charles, did you ever allow your mind to pierce the secret of the universe, to reason that this dull, cold earth is but the sepulcher of ages past, that man in all his glory is but the soil we tread, which every breeze wafts in an ever-shifting mass, to be found and lost in an infinity of particles—the dust of centuries, reunited and dissolving as long as time shall endure?

Charles—No-o, I dunno as I did. You see, I've had to earn my living.

Baiting Her.

"What are you cutting out of the paper?"
"About a California man securing a divorce because his wife went through his pockets."
"What are you going to do with it?"
"Put it in my pocket."—Boston Transcript.

Some Satisfaction.

"Are you the landlord of this hotel?" asked the guest who had his baggage on the porch.

"I guess I be," answered the man with pale eyes.

"Well, I want to hand this 'little sentiment to you. Your hotel is positively the worst I have ever seen in this country, and I've traveled all over it."

"I know it," answered the landlord. "And I have a kinder pride in it. Lemme tell you something about it. Every time we git beat out a board, bill it's sure some satisfaction to know that we got the best of the feller that done it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
